Much like in the rest of our nation, Greene County is experiencing a surge of political awakening, which translates in to Democrats of all horizons running for office, from our county government to our federal offices in D.C. While these candidates display a wide range of skills, backgrounds and paths, they all share a dedication to serving their communities, to leading toward responsible governing, and to putting people first. Greene County Democratic Party Chair, Doris Adams, captures this renewed level of energy and resilience in one sentence: "These candidates are stepping up to provide transparent and responsible governance that is lacking now. We are excited to have voters come to the reception and meet the future."
